

Home Learning: English: Thursday 11th June

Senses Poem.

Today we are going to have a go at writing a senses poem all about the seaside. We will be thinking about what you can see, hear, smell, taste and what you can feel at the beach.

Attached is a power point with some ideas for you to look at and to talk about with your grown up. You can also refer to the Lucy and Tom at the seaside story from your topic work.

I have had a go at writing my own poem. I thought really hard about a seaside I visited a lot when I used to live in Devon. You could perhaps think about the seaside places you have visited.

I can see the big waves crashing on to the beach

I can hear children playing in the chilly sea

I can smell pink candyfloss

I can feel the soft sand between my toes

I can taste the delicious ice cream with a flake in the top

(Adjectives- describing words)

So its your turn now. Have a go using the frame below. Remember to try and use some interesting adjectives (describing words) in your poem

A decorative border of ice cream cones surrounds the page. Each cone has a yellow top, a pink middle, and a brown bottom. They are arranged in a rectangular frame.

At the Seaside

I can see _____

I can hear _____

I can smell _____

I can feel _____

I can taste _____